Eight Dates and Nights

By Betsy Aldredge

Random House/Underlined, Oct. 2023 – Young Adult Fiction

Two teens with two very different ideas of how to spend Hanukkah learn to work together to save the last Jewish remnant in small town Texas in this cozy holiday romance!

For foreign licenses, please contact Random House.

New Yorker Hannah Levin is allergic to two things, horses and tinsel. Unfortunately, she's surrounded by both this Hanukkah when, thanks to a freak snow storm, she's stranded in the small town of Rosenblum, Texas, visiting her grandmother, who she hasn't seen in years due to family drama.

Super lonely, missing latkes and reliable wi-fi, she follows the scent of fried potatoes and wanders into an old deli where she meets the only other Jewish teen in town, Noah, who happens to be equal parts adorable and full of annoying, over the top Hanukkah spirit that he's determined to share with Hannah, one ugly, itchy Hanukkah sweater at a time.

She makes him a deal, she'll help him save his family's deli, which is practically the only Jewish remnant in a town that once had a thriving community of European immigrants, if he'll leave her to sulk in peace. However, after a spectacularly memorable kiss Hannah wonders if there's more to Hanukkah, this community, and even her grandmother, than she thought.

"Fans of Hannah Reynolds and readers who like some canoodling with their knishes will melt like grilled cheese on challah over this seasonal romance." —Booklist

"Infectious holiday zest." —Publishers Weekly

Into The Deep Blue

By Jennifer E. Archer

Marble Press, September 2025 – Young Adult Fiction

A stunningly lyrical, cinematic, unflinching portrait of teenage grief and love.

Nick and Fiona were meant to be friends—best friends—and they wouldn't change that for the world. At least, that's what they tell themselves. Because they can't be an us.

Nick doesn't believe in happy endings ever since they both lost their moms unexpectedly senior year. And Fiona often wonders if all they have in common is their numb hearts. Still, they're content to share everything else with each other. Honestly. Everything but sparks.

But when Fiona accidentally lets her guard down more than she intended to with Nick, it threatens to ruin their fragile balancing act. Luckily, Nick isn't about to let a little misunderstanding get in the way of the weekend trip they've been planning for months. Fiona is just hoping for some closure on the first anniversary of her mom's death—except grief isn't that simple, and choosing to love again isn't, either. Now the only thing standing between Fiona and Nick is the truth. They just need the courage to reach for it.

Told from two unforgettable points of view, Into the Deep Blue is Fiona and Nick's achingly moving, wry, and hopeful tale about falling apart and coming together by a remarkable new talent.

By Eric Bell

HarperCollins 2017 - Middle Grade Fiction

Perfect for fans of Tim Federle and Gary Schmidt, this is a hilarious and poignant tale about the trials of middle school when you're coming of age—and coming out.

Alan Cole can't stand up to his cruel brother, Nathan. He can't escape the wrath of his demanding father, who thinks he's about as exceptional as a goldfish. And—scariest of all—he can't let the cute boy across the cafeteria know he has a crush on him.

But when Nathan discovers Alan's secret, his older brother announces a high-stakes round of Cole vs. Cole. Each brother must complete seven nearly impossible tasks; whoever finishes the most wins the game. If Alan doesn't want to be outed to all of Evergreen Middle School, he's got to become the most well-known kid in school, get his first kiss, and stand up to Dad.

Alan's determined to prove—to Nathan, to the world, to himself—that this goldfish can learn to swim. May the best Cole win.

Alan Cole Doesn't Dance

By Eric Bell

HarperCollins 20 - Middle Grade Fiction

To heartwarming cheer, Alan Cole came out to his school. But now what?

In this follow-up novel to Alan Cole Is Not a Coward, Eric Bell deftly explores with nuance and humor how the first step to complete self-acceptance may mean actually putting your feet on the dance floor. This laugh-out-loud and poignant tale is perfect for fans of Gary Schmidt and Jerry Spinelli.

Alan Cole has a problem: Ron McCaughlin. Ever since Alan revealed he's gay, Ron has been bullying Alan with relentless fury. Alan can't tell his parents why he's really coming home with bruises—because they still don't know the truth about him.

Yet buoyed by the support of his classmates and with his friends Zack and Madison by his side, Alan thinks he can withstand the bullying and—just maybe—break through to Ron.

But all things come to a head when Alan's father asks that he take June Harrison to the upcoming Winter Dance. Never mind that Alan has two left feet, does not like girls, and might be developing feelings for a new boy at school.

This resounding tale about friendship, family, and the many meanings of bravery will leave readers rooting for Alan and his gang of proud misfits once more.

“This accessible, funny novel is honest about challenges queer kids may face while still giving them a hopeful ending.” —Horn Book

And the photos from their shoot? Yeah, they go viral.

Suddenly, everyone’s talking about the “perfect” couple. As their social media fame skyrockets, so does the chemistry crackling between them. But Jensen believes he’s too broken to ever heal and Callie is convinced love is just another pretty lie.

Together We Caught Fire

By Eva Gibson

SimonPulse/Simon & Schuster, 2020 – Young Adult Fiction

What happens when the boy you want most becomes the one person you can't have?

Lane is reeling from her mother's suicide and her endometriosis—and her life is turned upside down when her father introduces her to his new fiancée: mother of Greyson, Lane's longtime secret crush. With Grey living in Lane's house, it gets harder and harder to deny their growing mutual attraction—an attraction made all the more forbidden by Grey's long-term girlfriend Sadie, who also happens to be Lane's friend.

Torn between her feelings for Grey and her friendship with Sadie—not to mention her desire to keep the peace at home—Lane befriends Sadie's older brother, Connor, the black sheep of the strict, evangelical Hall family. Connor, a metalworker who is all sharp edges, challenges Lane in ways no one else ever has. As the two become closer and start to open up about the traumas in their respective pasts, Lane begins to question her conviction that Connor is just a distraction.

Tensions come to a head after a tragic incident at a party, forcing Lane to untangle her feelings for both boys and face the truth of what—and who—she wants, in this gripping, lyrical, and stunningly romantic debut novel.

Tu Books, an imprint of Lee & Low Books, is thrilled to announce the results of its eighth annual New Visions Award writing contest. Established to increase the number of authors of color writing for children and teens, the New Visions Award is given to a middle grade or young adult manuscript by a new author of color or Indigenous/ Native author. Winners receive a cash prize and publishing contract with Lee & Low Books. This year, Tiffany Golden has won the New Visions Award.

Golden's forthcoming manuscript Rikki and Rai is a middle-grade novel in closely-linked short stories about two sisters navigating their small town during the year of their parents' separation. Rai's sour, stubborn mood is often at odds with Rikki's hopeful, helpful nature. But when it matters most, they put their differences aside to cement their bond as sisters.

"Sometimes with siblings, tough times bring them closer together," says author Tiffany Golden. "Love survives in hard times."

* A New York Times Bestseller! ****

In this first book in a YA fantasy series from New York Times bestselling author Carrie Jones, Zara discovers that magic is stirring in her town...and herself.

Zara collects phobias the way other teenagers collect lipstick. Little wonder, since she's had a rough life. Her father left when she was a baby, and her stepfather just died. Her mother's checked out—in fact, Mom's sent her to live with her grandmother in cold and sleepy Maine to "keep Zara safe." Whatever that means. Zara doesn't think she's in danger.

Zara's wrong. The man she sees everywhere—the tall, creepy guy who points at her from the side of the road—he's not a figment of her imagination. He's a pixie. And not the cute kind with little wings. Maine has a whole assortment of unbelievable creatures, like pixies and were-people. And they seem to need something—something from Zara...

Flying

By Carrie Jones

Tor Teen/Macmillan, 2016 – Young Adult Fiction Duology

17-year-old Mana is used to being coddled as an only child, but it's hard to imagine anything could happen in her small town. As her mother's babying gets more stifling, she looks forward to cheering at the big game and getting out of the house for a bit. But that night, Mana's life goes haywire.

First, her crush starts spitting acid during the game. Then they get into a fight in the locker room, and Mana finds herself leaping like a kangaroo. As a flyer on the cheerleading squad, she's always been a good jumper, but this is a bit much. Then she gets home to find her house trashed, an alien in the garage.

It turns out Mana's frumpy, timid mom is actually an alien hunter, and now she's missing—taking a piece of technology with her that everyone wants. Now her partner, a guy that Mana has never met (and who seems way too young to be hunting aliens), shows up, ordering Mana to come with him. On her own for the first time, Mana will have to find a way to save her mother—and maybe the world.

The Vanished Ones

By Chad Lucas

Abrams, January 2025 – Middle Grade Fiction

From award-winning author Chad Lucas comes an enthralling new story about a strange island where boys go missing—and the two boys intent on uncovering the truth about it.

On Rhodenroode Island, a remote colony of the Homeland, there sits a Mission on the Hill, where boys are taken in and taught the ways of the faith. Darian is the only trainee of his race there, and he doesn't remember how he came to the Mission. All he remembers are brown hands and the belly of a ship. Life among the other boys and the cantankerous Brothers is not always easy, but Darian is determined to live up to the lofty calling the leaders of the Mission have laid out for him: that one day he will carry the Sacred Word to places it has yet to reach.

But when another trainee at the Mission disappears—the latest in a string of vanishings—Darian is determined to solve the mystery that begins to shake his faith in what he's always been taught. When he and his friend Micah sneak away from the Mission and head east to see what they can learn about the rebel sect supposedly responsible for the vanishings, they discover that the island holds far more secrets than they ever could have imagined—and somehow, they must save the other boys at the Mission from a danger that's even greater than they realized.

You Owe Me One, Universe

By Chad Lucas

Abrams, November 2023 – Middle Grade Fiction

Brian and Ezra's story continues in the moving sequel to Thanks a Lot, Universe, which New York Times best-selling author Nic Stone called "a glorious ode to the beauty of preteen friendship."

Brian knows that anxiety and depression aren't things that are magically fixed overnight, but he still doesn't understand why it's all hitting him so hard right now. Sure, his dad is still in prison and middle school is still stressful, but he's seeing a therapist, he's got good friends, and he's doing really well on the basketball team. He should be fine, so why does he feel too tired to get out of bed some days? And why does he turn into "Cursed Monster Brian" and snap whenever someone asks him what's wrong?

Ezra is trying his best to look out for Brian, but he's not sure that he's actually helping. Sure, they're still best friends, but as Ezra starts preparing for the talent show, he also starts talking with Victor—the kid who relentlessly bullied Brian last year. It seems like Victor's changed, and whenever he and Ezra hang out and make music together, Ezra's stomach feels a little bit swoopy. But even if he likes making music and talking with Victor, he still feels like he's betraying his best friend whenever they hang out. And he worries that he's falling for another boy who won't return his feelings . . .

Earnest, heartfelt, and full of humor, You Owe Me One, Universe explores the nuances and complications of middle school relationships—and shows how the smallest acts of caring can be the ones that matter most.

Let The Monster Out

By Chad Lucas

Abrams, May 2022 – Middle Grade Fiction

Welcome to the nightmare.

An equal parts heart-pounding and heartfelt middle-grade mystery about facing—and accepting—your fears, perfect for fans of Stranger Things and The Parker Inheritance.

Bones Malone feels like he can't do anything right in his new small town: He almost punched the son of the woman who babysits him and his brothers, he's one of the only Black kids in Langille, and now his baseball team (the one place where he really feels like he shines) just lost their first game. To make matters worse, things in town are getting weird. His mom isn't acting like herself at all—she's totally spaced out, almost like a zombie. And then he and his brothers have the same dream—one where they're running from some of their deepest fears, like a bear and an eerie cracked mirror that Bones would rather soon forget.

Kyle Specks feels like he can never say the right thing at the right time. He thinks he might be neurodivergent, but hasn't gotten an official diagnosis yet. His parents worry that the world might be too hard for him and try to protect him, but Kyle knows they can't do that forever. Even though he's scared, he can't just stand by and do nothing while things in this town get stranger and stranger, especially not after he and Bones find a mysterious scientist's journal that might hold answers about what's going on.

But when faced with seemingly impossible situations, a shady corporation, and their own worst nightmares, will Kyle and Bones be brave enough to admit they're scared? Or will the fear totally consume and control them?

Be brave. Be real. Be weird.

Brian has always been anxious, whether at home or in class or on the basketball court. His dad tries to get him to stand up for himself, and his mom helps him as much as she can, but after he and his brother are placed in foster care, Brian starts having panic attacks. And he doesn't know if things will ever be "normal" again...

But now, some of his friends have been acting different, and Brian seems to be pulling away. Ezra wants to help, but he worries if he's too nice to Brian, his friends will realize he has a crush on him...

But when Brian and his brother run away, Ezra has no choice but to take the leap and reach out. Both boys have to decide if they're willing to risk sharing parts of themselves they'd rather hide. But if they can be brave, they might just find the best in themselves—and each other.

Set against the backdrop of a middle school cultural fair, this tenderhearted and funny novel from the author of The Unbeatable Lily Hong stars twelve-year-old Sophie Mu—who discovers the power of defining oneself as she navigates friendship drama, family expectations, and learning about her Hui, her Chinese Muslim identity.

Sophie's work on the Chinese booth at last year's Rainbow Fair is a point of pride for her and her parents, even if Sophie and her best friend, Katie, think the whole thing is a little silly. Sophie's family is Hui, Chinese Muslim. The Muslim part is something she doesn't know much about. Her parents prefer to keep it private. So when it gets slipped to an overenthusiastic teacher that Sophie is Muslim, the only Muslim in her class, suddenly Sophie is in charge of debuting a booth representing the Islamic religion she doesn't practice, an assignment she is determined to keep secret from her parents.

Having to choose between leaving the Chinese booth or taking on double the workload leaves Sophie feeling conflicted. Why does she have to choose which part of herself to represent? Is it an issue with her or with how the Rainbow Fair is organized?

Between juggling both booths, old and new friends, and learning more about her Muslim faith and ancestry, Sophie starts to notice how her working on two booths starts to spark change throughout the student body. It turns out Sophie isn't the only one at Monroe Middle School whose identity isn't so simply categorized by the Rainbow Fair's limited booths.

One thing is for sure, this year's Rainbow Fair won't look anything like it did in the past, and Sophie begins to realize that that might not be a bad thing at all.

"Ma offers a rich, relatable, and inclusive story that's perfect for young readers grappling with their own questions of belonging. Accessible and engaging, this novel shines as an exceptional tale of self-acceptance and understanding. — Kirkus Starred Review

Trini Kwan is trying to get through high school unnoticed. Nobody knows that she has trained for years in martial arts, and she prefers to let her classmates think she’s just the shy Asian girl.

But Trini’s world turns upside down when the homecoming game is attacked by an otherworldly winged beast with an army of clay soldiers. Unable to sit by while innocent people get hurt, Trini springs into action—alongside science genius Billy, her childhood best friend Zack, popular jock Jason, and new girl Kimberly.

In the aftermath, the five teenagers are recruited by an alien warrior named Zordon to become the new Power Rangers, charged with protecting the planet from an evil sorceress who recently escaped imprisonment. Suddenly thrust in the middle of a millenniums-long intergalactic war is hard enough, but getting her new teammates to work together proves to be a difficult task.

The Unbeatable Lily Hong

By Diana Ma

Harper/HMH, January 2024 – Middle Grade Fiction

A smart, funny, and heartfelt middle grade novel about Lily Hong's attempts to save her parents' Chinese school and the town's community center using all the resources she has—devoted friends, ingenuity, a passion for filmmaking, mediocre dance moves (at best), and perhaps even her archnemesis.

For foreign licenses, please contact HarperCollins.

If there's one thing Lily Hong can't stand, it's being second best. That's why she and Max Zhang are bitter rivals.

She had wanted to be the one to win the pizza party for their class. Okay, so that was two years ago...her best friends didn't totally get it, but they were on her side. That's why they agreed to help Lily with her submission for the Clarktown's Got Talent video competition.

But finding time to work on her video is proving harder than ever. In addition to regular homework and the Chinese school her parents own and run out of the Clarktown Community Center, Lily's been getting weird vibes from her parents. Then her mom announces the Community Center is having a showcase, and the students of Hong Chinese Academy will be performing as a group—traditional Chinese dance!

Lily has no choice. She'll have to juggle the video competition and the art of Chinese dance simultaneously.

But when Max Zhang unexpectedly shows up in her class at Chinese school with his perfect Mandarin and his surprisingly good dance skills, Lily might just have to embrace her longtime rival as a key part of her plan to save the community center.

The pushcarts have declared war! New York City's streets are clogged with huge, rude trucks that park where they want, hold up traffic, and bulldoze anything in their way, and the pushcart peddlers are determined to get rid of them. But the trucks are just as determined to get rid of the pushcarts.

The pushcarts have come up with a brilliant plan sure to let the hot air out of their enemies: The secret weapon—a peashooter armed with a pin; the target—the vulnerable truck tires. Once the source of the flat tires is discovered, the children of the city join in with their own pin peashooters.

The pushcarts have won one battle, but can they win the war against a corrupt mayor who taxes the pins and prohibits the sale of dried peas?

As her father's last surviving heir, Mae is Locke's only hope of finding this supernatural jewel hidden amidst her family's secret fortune.

Agreeing to work together and split the fortune, they share an instant spark of attraction. But they're not alone in their search. Thirty To Sixty Days

By Alikay Wood

Abrams/Amulet, June 2023 – Young Adult Fiction

A hilarious and irreverent coming-of-age YA novel in which three teens facing uncertain futures embark on a madcap adventure that challenges each of their identities.

For foreign licenses, please contact Abrams.

Hattie Larken is a compulsive liar with a quick-witted response to everything, willing to do whatever it takes to graduate and escape it all: the mind-numbing monotony of this town, the guilt of everything that happened with her dad, and the debt her mom's left dealing with.

But then Hattie finds out she's dying. Not in that overdramatic way that people sometimes say they're dying. She's literally dying. Apparently, she was exposed to a parasite because of a mistake her mom's company made. And she's not the only one. Two other kids from her class were exposed to the parasite: Carmen, who seems totally perfect with a loving family and a totally beautiful girlfriend; and Albie, a quiet kid who survived childhood cancer only to deal with this.

Instead of sitting around a hospital waiting to die, the three form an unlikely alliance to live the last days of their lives to the fullest. Stealing and sailing a boat to Miami? Absolutely. Adopting the turtle that a random college student hands to them? Of course. Sneaking into the sold-out music festival in town? You better believe it! And if Hattie just happens to find a way to raise some money for her mom through filming all their misadventures—well, she's not going to not do that.

Snarky, bold, and deeply real, Thirty to Sixty Days examines how three teens grapple with the thread of imminent death—and how each discovers what life ought to be.
