WHEN SQUIRRELS FLY

By D.E. Carr

English language rights only

A smart, chaotic, cozy mystery for fans of Connie Willis and Janet Evanovich. Allie Caldwell's eccentric aunt vanishes after a frantic midnight call. Allie bolts to Ann Arbor. Trouble hits instantly. Wormholes appear. Pets riot. Neighbors scheme. A handsome stranger complicates everything. And those furious flying squirrels in her dreams keep issuing warnings. To survive the drones, the secrets, and the increasingly unhinged clues, Allie must trust her instincts-and solve the case before someone else disappears for good. Fast. Brainy. Delightfully unhinged. This debut doesn't slow down.

PROMISED LAND

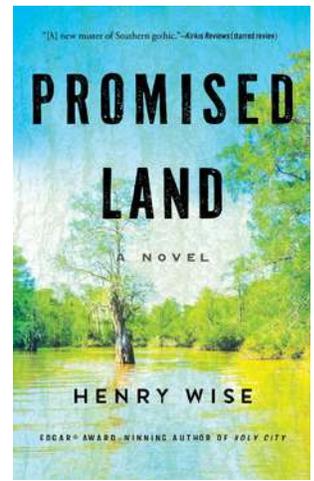

By Henry Wise

EDGAR AWARD WINNER FOR BEST FIRST NOVEL OF THE YEAR

★ "A new master of Southern gothic." — Kirkus (starred review)

From Edgar Award-winning author Henry Wise, this forceful sequel to Holy City brims with Wise's trademark examination of the pathos and ethos of small-town life, the equal weights of grief and hatred. As detectives in a missing persons case search for answers, the sum of their investigations illuminates the hard fact that there is a price for progress, and a cost to living by a code. Powerful and complex, the novel observes the gravity of the past, the momentum of sin, and the impossibility of salvation. Grove will publish a third novel by Wise that is set in the same universe in 2027.

THE MARRIAGE BED

By Tommy Hays

*"Perfectly paced, riveting, unrelentingly honest and wise in its depiction of what William Faulkner called 'the human heart in conflict with itself.' A remarkable achievement." - Ron Rash, Serena and The Caretaker

A freak accident on the heels of a startling revelation lays bare the foundation of a marriage and leaves a husband to grapple with the aftermath. Unfolding over a few tense weeks and told from multiple points of view, the novel explores how a tragedy can assume as many shapes as the people it touches. Hays is an acclaimed Southern writer, whose novels are The Pleasure Was Mine (St. Martin's, 2005), In the Family Way (Random House, 1999), Sam's Crossing (Atheneum, 1992), and a YA novel, What I Came to Tell You (Egmont USA, 2013).

THE GREEN SAHARA: Regaining Paradise In The Face of Climate Change

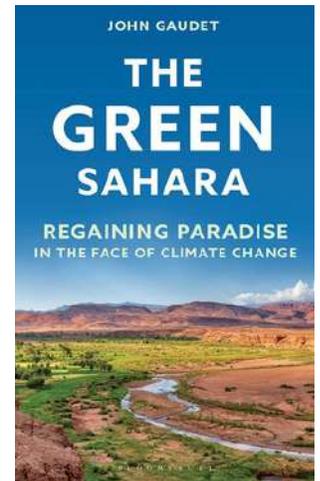

by John Gaudet

British rights not available

"A compelling case for making the world's largest desert lush." — Kirkus Reviews

A green Sahara is something the world has not seen since 10,000 BC when the Sahara was a wet, lush region. Ancient climate change claimed it and dried it up. But what if we could reverse the desertification of the Sahara, and bring back the green paradise? Gaudet's manifesto posits that covering just 20% of the Sahara Desert with wind turbines and solar panels would generate almost five times more energy than is currently needed worldwide - green energy climate change induced by man could restore and transform the Sahara's ecosystem. Gaudet, a Fulbright Scholar, spent 17 years in Africa, teaching at various universities and as an environmental officer. He is the author of Papyrus and Pharaoh's Treasure.
