THE STORY

Now that Lakshmi has returned to her hometown for her senior year of high school, she's determined to "live a little" — as her new friend Emily would say. That means searching for love, chasing an adrenaline rush, and of course, studiously ignoring her former best friend and crush, Adil. But when a series of unexpected events forces them back into each other's orbit, Lakshmi and Adil strike a deal: they'll fake a relationship. It's the perfect plan—until fake starts to feel dangerously real.

A funny, heartfelt, and irresistibly romantic story about friendship, second chances, and finding the courage to write your own happy ending.

AUTHENTIC REPRESENTATION

A fresh, relatable South Asian protagonist.

CAVE JUMPERS

SIXTEEN-YEAR-OLD ASTRID WILL DO ANYTHING TO KEEP HER FOUND FAMILY FROM SLIPPING AWAY — EVEN IF IT MEANS FAKING HER WAY INTO THE ELITE JUMPERS.

In a world of spectacular underwater caves, the Jumpers — teens trained to explore the deadly depths — shield their valley from the monsters lurking beyond. But Astrid discovers the real danger isn't just the beasts in the dark; they're the secrets her society is built on, the mentor whose morality is cracking at the seams, and the forbidden knowledge buried deep beneath the surface.

Packed with deadly trials, found family, and a world built on lies, Cave Jumpers is a high-stakes debut that delivers relentless tension and an explosive twist that reshapes everything that came before.

A BREATHTAKING WORLD

THE STORY

A beautiful, heartfelt coming-of-age story set against the vibrant backdrop of Taipei. After a lifetime spent chasing her parents' sky-high expectations — including the ultimate prize of getting into Harvard — Frankie Lu finally steps off the path laid out for her. She chooses to spend the summer with her grandparents, hoping to reconnect with the pieces of herself she left behind in childhood ... including the former best friend she never expected to see again.

As Frankie explores the city, her family's history, and the freedom of being truly herself, she begins to unravel who she is outside of achievement and obligation. Readers will fall in love with her emotional growth, her rediscovery of joy, and the tender spark of her first real romance.

Seventeen-year-old Princess Elowen spends her nights disguised in a gaming hall, winning coin she secretly redistributes to the poor—until a brawl ends with her magical pendant stolen by the infamous Prince of Thieves.

With a week until a tournament decides her political marriage and her throne, losing the pendant means treason and death. To steal it back, Elowen infiltrates the Thief Underground, joining Brich's ragtag crew and discovering the world her kingdom has spent years suppressing. As they plan a high-stakes heist, she uncovers forbidden truths about her lineage, her kingdom's lies, and the boy she was raised to fear.

Now Elowen must choose between reclaiming her crown or siding with outlaws who've shown her the first taste of freedom she's ever known—because saving her people might mean becoming the traitor they've always warned her about.

By night, she becomes the masked phantom stealing priceless art across Lazuli Bay to keep her family afloat.

Liam Desman, track star and son of the city's top detective, is determined to prove himself by catching the elusive thief who keeps outsmarting the entire police force. But the more he chases her—across rooftops, alleyways, and late-night stakeouts—the more this mysterious girl becomes his escape from the pressure crushing him at home.

As Hazel and Liam clash in the daylight halls of their high school and collide in the shadows after dark, their enemies on paper, chemistry in practice, and the truth threatens to expose them both. Soon they'll have to decide what—and who—they're really willing to risk.

THE STORY

The Fossbridge School for Timid Girls exists outside time and place. Its students are sixteen forever, waiting for the one moment that matters: Graduation.

Life at Fossbridge is governed by schedules, elaborate social hierarchies, and an unforgiving competition for approval. The successful girls graduate and reclaim the lives they've forgotten. The others wait.

But when two newcomers challenge Fossbridge's carefully controlled ecosystem, cracks begin to appear. Whispers become rebellion. Rivalries become dangerous. And the school's darkest secret threatens to surface.

Because at Fossbridge, timid girls can change.

The oceans rose, and they brought death with them.

In Horizon City, a single drop of poisonous water means the Scourge—a swift, inevitable end. The only people brave or desperate enough to venture outside are the skyclimbers—fearless scavengers who survive by trusting each other with their lives.

Moon has nobody else left. Her mother and sister are gone, and her father is a mere shell of the man he used to be. The skyclimber crew she's fighting to join is the closest thing she has to family.

When she pulls a data pyramid from the ruins, a find so rare most consider them a myth, it should be her ticket to joining the crew. Except the data inside is locked, and a pyramid no one can open is worth nothing at all.

There's only one person she knows who might be able to crack it: Barker, a charming hacker she's never met but talks to every single day. Close enough to trust. Distant enough to feel safe. Near enough to dream about...

Desperate, Moon sets out across the most dangerous terrain on earth to find him. What she discovers will shatter everything she thought she knew about her past.

Because someone has been keeping secrets.

And what's locked inside that pyramid threatens to bring all of Horizon City crashing down.

ROCK ON, SUMMER SANDERS

STEPHANIE KATE STROHM

THE STORY

Sixteen-year-old Summer Sanders has been in a band since she was five. Unfortunately, that band is the Sanders Family Folk Collective, and it most decidedly does not rock—unlike Lethal Conviction, the undefeated Anderson High Battle of the Bands champion.

Like almost every other junior in Chicago, Summer has a raging crush on gorgeous frontman Shane Wiley, but finding the courage to talk to him feels impossible. When her neighbor and Lethal Conviction guitarist Isaac mentions that they've lost their bassist, Summer impulsively offers to take her place.

There's only one problem: Summer plays the banjo, not the bass. And when Lethal Conviction gets an opportunity that goes way beyond the Anderson High gymnasium, the stakes are higher than she could have imagined. As Summer immerses herself in punk history, learns to actually play the bass, and discovers what it means to take the stage, she realizes that Isaac might be more than the boy-next-door, that the band isn't just a way to get to Shane, and that the music she grew up on rocks in its own way, too.

In Rock On, Summer Sanders, Summer finds her voice—in every way.

Ailan has many older sisters, but Xifei is the one she loves most—and the one she's secretly betrayed. So when her sister vanishes from the Heavens, Ailan is willing to cross the entire mortal realm to bring her back, no matter the cost.

Kai despises immortals. Marked forever by the god who stole his brother's life, he's spent every day since chasing vengeance. They say immortals cannot be killed; he's determined to prove them wrong.

When Ailan descends from the Heavens searching for her sister, Kai seizes his chance, offering to guide her to an oracle who might help—while hiding a darker plan. But their journey through the Middle Kingdom pulls them into the deadly schemes of tyrants and demons. THE STORY

For her entire life, the Name-Bearer's sole purpose has been to receive and deliver the names of the future monarchy from the Flowers of Prophecy. But when the child is finally born and the Name-Bearer is sent to the Flowers, they refuse to name him. Instead they deliver a prophecy; another child was born who is more worthy of the Naming, and if they are found and brought before them it will usher in a reign of peace.

Having failed in her duties the Name-Bearer is considered a traitor to the crown, and must hide among an elite set of warrior women where she experiences found family, friendship, and love. Her training as a warrior helps prepare her to embark on the quest to find the Unnamed Prince, clear her name, and bring peace to her realm.

THE STORY

Former adrenaline junkie and white-hat hacker Savannah Reed is still trying to outrun the trauma that nearly cost her everything. Determined to reclaim her life, she finds an unexpected refuge at a local MMA gym and the harsh, disciplined world of fighter training.

Kai Makenzie, an undefeated MMA fighter, is on parole after a catastrophic mistake that destroyed the lives of the people he loves. He's desperate to get his future back on track and prove he's more than his past.

When danger from old enemies threatens them both, Savannah and Kai are forced into a partnership that could heal them—or destroy them. Because some fights aren't just in the ring. And some scars lead to something stronger than either of them. imagined.

KJ MORGAN

KJ Morgan is a hiker, a climber, a martial artist, and an adventure seeker. She trains and teaches Krav Maga self-defense and trains in Muay Thai kickboxing. When she's not writing dark, angsty romance, she's either hiking something, climbing something, or kicking something.

THE STORY

There is only one rule they must follow in the faery court, where pain and pleasure are elevated to art: entertain the king, or suffer the consequences of his boredom.

Getting close to the enigmatic and alluring faery king isn't just a matter of survival; it is the only hope Eileen and her lovers have of escaping Craigmar's curse. Adan, Nicola, Finley and Eileen must scheme and seduce their way through court, all in the name of breaking the others free.

But it's so hard to want to be a hero when the faery king offers them each the fulfillment of their wildest desires... for a price.

THE STORY

Last year, Ali Brooks was chasing Olympic gold...until a wardrobe malfunction turned her into an internet punchline overnight. Now she's working as a lifeguard at a Jersey Shore hotel-casino, desperately trying to figure out what comes next.

"Next" turns out to be a gorgeous—and very naked—stranger with smoldering eyes, long dark hair and...a tail?! As if Ali's life wasn't complicated enough, she's just come face-to-fin with a genuine merman, locked out of his underwater kingdom and stranded in the human world. Tobias needs a place to stay. Ali needs a fresh start. Her solution? Put a real-live merman in her splashy casino revue: hidden in plain sight, nobody will suspect a thing.

At least until their billionaire boss starts taking too much interest in the star attraction... and the magic he brings with him. Now Ali and Tobias are forced to smuggle him out of his glorified aquarium, race down the Florida coast in search of a rumored portal back to his world... and try with all their might not to fall in love with the one person they could never keep.

In Love at First Splash, sometimes the biggest risks lead to the most unexpected happily ever afters.

THE STORY

Fall quarter, Stanford University: Rosalind Song is partway through her PhD, about to publish her research at last, and this is the year she'll get everything she's ever dreamed of. But it's a dangerous time to be doing science, especially as a foreigner, and when the FBI begins asking questions about the lab and the professor she works for, she knows her carefully constructed life is at risk—unless she can discover what they're really after.

As Rosalind begins her own, private investigation into the lab and her supervisor's enigmatic past, she keeps running into the same obstacle: Peter Sun. She and Peter have spent years competing against each other, and at first, Rosalind thinks this is just another contest, a competition one of them will inevitably win. Peter, though, knows it isn't. Because when the FBI arrives, they offered him a deal. And unbeknownst to anyone—his family, his friends, Rosalind—he said yes.

Inspired by true events, Anatomy of a Betrayal is a spy novel with a love story at its heart, examining ambition, loyalty, and what it means to love a field that will never love you back.

GRACE LI

Grace D. Li grew up in Pearland, Texas, and is a graduate of Duke University and Stanford School of Medicine. Her debut novel, Portrait of a Thief, was an instant New York Times bestseller and #1 international bestseller. THE STORY

Masie Lace Ridgewood is a talented but clumsy aspiring actress who, after being a last-minute recast, lands a life-changing role in the blockbuster movie Starstruck. She finds herself starring opposite Ransom Kettering, a famous, brooding, and cynical heartthrob.

As the cameras roll, Masie must navigate the chaos of sudden fame, the pressures of the film industry, and her own insecurities while trying to keep up with a co-star who seems impossible to read. But what begins as an unlikely pairing on screen slowly turns into something real, forcing them both to confront what they truly want—both in their careers and in their hearts.

A witty, heartfelt rom-com about second chances, self-discovery, and finding the courage to be your authentic self.

OLD MAGIC.
UNLIKELY FRIENDS.
A FOREST WORTH FIGHTING FOR.

THE STORY

Chaucer, a disgraced wizard bound to protect the Wyndale, wants nothing more than solitude with his books and his pet crow. But despite his resentment toward the forest—and his painful past—unlikely friends and a captivating tree nymph keep pulling him toward redemption.

When dark forces begin attacking the Wyndale and an old enemy resurfaces, Chaucer must finally embrace the magic he's long denied. If he can't, the forest—and the last remnants of earthly magic—may vanish forever.

AMBER KIRKPATRICK

Amber dabbled with words for years and dreamed of writing a story that had been in her head since her teens. In 2021 she finally sat down to get it out of her system. It was intended to be something fun for her kids to read someday, but evolved into her coming-of-age kingdom fantasy, Until the Rising. After that, there was no stopping her. Now characters and stories flood Amber's mind, and she tries to capture them as best as she can.

Rather than be put in a box, Amber enjoys exploring different genres and writing styles. Her short stories and poetry can be found in various anthologies. More books are simmering on the stove, waiting to be served one day.

LAURA GABRIEL

Laura writes romantic adventures woven from myth, memories, and the magic of what it means to be human. Shaped by her heritage, she grew up in a family with strong traditions, deep-rooted values, and an emphasis on intellectual curiosity. Stories were at the forefront of holidays and family dinners, questions were always welcome, and discussions were never in short supply.

With a background in design, theatre, and biblical studies, her love of myth, art, and the power of the human mind continues to shape the stories she tells. When she isn't writing, you can find her daydreaming over an apple soda, redesigning real and imaginary spaces, or traveling with her family. Laura lives in Denver, Colorado with her family and her taxidermied flamingo named Mortimer.

THE STORY

In Thornwick, Massachusetts, where every day is Halloween, the town's famous spooky charm draws tourists year-round. Tessa Graves, manager of the local Visitor's Center, is used to overseeing ghost tours, pumpkin festivals, and costumed celebrations. But when bestselling paranormal skeptic Grayson Hale arrives in Thornwick to debunk the infamous Widow in the Walls legend, the spooky atmosphere takes a deadly turn.

Before he can write his tell-all, Grayson is found murdered inside the allegedly haunted Galloway House. When Tessa's old friend Rebecca Grayson's wife, is arrested, the case becomes personal. With the police convinced they have their killer, Tessa has to dig deeper.

As tourists flood the town for its biggest event of the year, the weekly Haunt Fest, the pressure is on for Tessa to uncover the truth. Tessa reluctantly teams up with Dylan Winslow, the handsome innkeeper she's spent a year avoiding after his disastrous first impression. Unfortunately, the more clues they uncover, the more impossible he becomes to ignore. And he may be hiding a secret of his own.

With danger lurking around every corner and her own life at risk, Tessa must put all the pieces together before the killer strikes again. But in a town where every day is Halloween, the truth may be the biggest scare of all.
